

English A: Literature 4 Comparative essay: narrative or dramatic technique (Paper 2)	English A: Literature 4 Comparative essay: narrative or dramatic technique (Paper 2)	English A: Literature 4 Comparative essay: narrative or dramatic technique (Paper 2)
Why might comparing narrative or dramatic technique produce a stronger Paper 2 essay than comparing theme alone?	Give one example of a dramatic (not narrative) technique that could be compared across two plays.	A non-chronological (fragmented) structure most typically has which effect on an audience? A It guarantees the audience feels no suspense B It can create mystery, force re-evaluation of earlier events, or highlight thematic connections over strict cause-and-effect C It always simplifies the plot D It removes the need for characterisation
IB-ENGLISHALIT-4-1CONCEPT	IB-ENGLISHALIT-4-2CONCEPT	IB-ENGLISHALIT-4-3MULTIPLE CHOICE
English A: Literature 4 Comparative essay: narrative or dramatic technique (Paper 2)	English A: Literature 5 The novel and short story: narrative method	English A: Literature 5 The novel and short story: narrative method
Name one narrative technique and one dramatic technique that could each control an audience's sympathy.	What is 'narrative method' in prose fiction?	Why do short stories often rely more heavily on implication than novels do?
IB-ENGLISHALIT-4-4PRACTICE	IB-ENGLISHALIT-5-1CONCEPT	IB-ENGLISHALIT-5-2CONCEPT
English A: Literature 5 The novel and short story: narrative method	English A: Literature 5 The novel and short story: narrative method	English A: Literature 6 Poetry: voice, form and imagery
A story told by a narrator who has direct access to only one character's thoughts is using which point of view? A Omniscient third person B Limited third person (or first person) C Second person D Objective/dramatic point of view with no access to any mind	Name one technique a novelist can use to manage multiple narrative strands that a short story writer rarely needs.	Why is it a common analytical error to assume the poem's speaker equals the poet?
IB-ENGLISHALIT-5-3MULTIPLE CHOICE	IB-ENGLISHALIT-5-4PRACTICE	IB-ENGLISHALIT-6-1CONCEPT
English A: Literature 6 Poetry: voice, form and imagery	English A: Literature 6 Poetry: voice, form and imagery	English A: Literature 6 Poetry: voice, form and imagery
How does poetic form (e.g. fixed rhyme scheme vs free verse) interact with meaning?	An extended metaphor sustained across an entire poem is generally called: A A simile B A conceit C An apostrophe D Onomatopoeia	Briefly explain how enjambment can affect a poem's emotional tone.
IB-ENGLISHALIT-6-2CONCEPT	IB-ENGLISHALIT-6-3MULTIPLE CHOICE	IB-ENGLISHALIT-6-4PRACTICE
English A: Literature 7 Drama: staging, dialogue and dramatic irony	English A: Literature 7 Drama: staging, dialogue and dramatic irony	English A: Literature 7 Drama: staging, dialogue and dramatic irony
Why must drama be analysed differently from prose, given both use dialogue?	What is 'subtext' in dramatic dialogue?	A soliloquy is best defined as: A A conversation between two characters overheard by a third B A speech delivered by a character alone on stage, revealing inner thoughts directly to the audience C A stage direction describing lighting D A chorus commenting on the action
IB-ENGLISHALIT-7-1CONCEPT	IB-ENGLISHALIT-7-2CONCEPT	IB-ENGLISHALIT-7-3MULTIPLE CHOICE

English A: Literature 7 Drama: staging, dialogue and dramatic irony	English A: Literature 8 Prose other than fiction: rhetoric and structure	English A: Literature 8 Prose other than fiction: rhetoric and structure
Give one staging element (besides dialogue) that could reveal a character's hidden emotion, and explain briefly.	What are the three classical rhetorical appeals?	Why is the 'implied author' in non-fiction usually treated differently from the narrator in fiction?
IB-ENGLISHALIT-7-4PRACTICE	IB-ENGLISHALIT-8-1CONCEPT	IB-ENGLISHALIT-8-2CONCEPT
English A: Literature 8 Prose other than fiction: rhetoric and structure	English A: Literature 8 Prose other than fiction: rhetoric and structure	English A: Literature 9 Works in translation: context and cultural framing
A rhetorical question (a question asked for effect, not to elicit an answer) most often functions to: A Provide new factual information B Engage the audience and imply an obvious answer, reinforcing the speaker's point C Signal the end of the text D Introduce a change of speaker	Name one structural choice (besides chronology) a non-fiction writer might use, and its likely effect.	Why is it important to consider a translator's choices when analysing a work in translation?
IB-ENGLISHALIT-8-3MULTIPLE CHOICE	IB-ENGLISHALIT-8-4PRACTICE	IB-ENGLISHALIT-9-1CONCEPT
English A: Literature 9 Works in translation: context and cultural framing	English A: Literature 9 Works in translation: context and cultural framing	English A: Literature 9 Works in translation: context and cultural framing
What risk arises from treating a translated work's cultural context as identical to the reader's own?	A translator's footnote explaining a culturally specific term most directly affects: A The novel's original publication date B The reader's access to context that might otherwise be lost or ambiguous in translation C The number of chapters in the work D The original author's biography	Give one reason a translated work's rhythm or wordplay might differ from its original-language version.
IB-ENGLISHALIT-9-2CONCEPT	IB-ENGLISHALIT-9-3MULTIPLE CHOICE	IB-ENGLISHALIT-9-4PRACTICE
English A: Literature 10 The HL essay: independent literary analysis (HL)	English A: Literature 10 The HL essay: independent literary analysis (HL)	English A: Literature 10 The HL essay: independent literary analysis (HL)
What is the approximate word length and key requirement of the HL essay?	Why is a broad topic like 'themes of love' generally unsuitable for an HL essay?	The HL essay differs from Paper 1 and Paper 2 primarily because it: A Is written under timed exam conditions on an unseen text B Is an independently researched and self-directed piece of analysis completed outside exam conditions C Compares exactly three works D Focuses only on biographical criticism
IB-ENGLISHALIT-10-1CONCEPT	IB-ENGLISHALIT-10-2CONCEPT	IB-ENGLISHALIT-10-3MULTIPLE CHOICE
English A: Literature 10 The HL essay: independent literary analysis (HL)	English A: Literature 11 Individual oral: global issue in literary and non-literary works	English A: Literature 11 Individual oral: global issue in literary and non-literary works
What is one common weakness examiners note in HL essay lines of inquiry?	What must the individual oral connect, beyond simply identifying a global issue?	Why is extract selection considered a critical skill for the individual oral?
IB-ENGLISHALIT-10-4PRACTICE	IB-ENGLISHALIT-11-1CONCEPT	IB-ENGLISHALIT-11-2CONCEPT

English A: Literature

11 Individual oral: global issue in literary and non-literary works

A student who spends most of the individual oral summarising plot and biography rather than analysing technique in relation to the global issue is most likely to:

A Receive full marks for content coverage

B Be assessed as not meeting the task's core requirement of linking global issue to literary craft

C Automatically pass since all information was accurate

D Only lose marks for timing, not content

IB-ENGLISHALIT-11-3

MULTIPLE CHOICE

English A: Literature

11 Individual oral: global issue in literary and non-literary works

Name one non-literary type of text (as opposed to literary work) that could theoretically inform preparation for identifying a global issue.

IB-ENGLISHALIT-11-4

PRACTICE

English A: Literature 1 Guided literary analysis: unseen prose (Paper 1)	English A: Literature 1 Guided literary analysis: unseen prose (Paper 1)	English A: Literature 1 Guided literary analysis: unseen prose (Paper 1)
B. Organising paragraphs by idea, each supported by textual evidence, produces a more coherent argument than organising by device or retelling plot.	Because examiners reward interpretation of effect and meaning, not identification alone; devices must be shown to serve the passage's overall meaning and the guiding question.	It directs your analytical focus toward a specific aspect of the passage (e.g. a technique or effect) so your essay builds a coherent argument rather than a generic feature-by-feature description.
IB-ENGLISHALIT-1-3ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-1-2ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-1-1ANSWER
English A: Literature 2 Guided literary analysis: unseen poetry (Paper 1)	English A: Literature 2 Guided literary analysis: unseen poetry (Paper 1)	English A: Literature 1 Guided literary analysis: unseen prose (Paper 1)
Strong analysis explains how specific formal and sound choices (metre, rhyme, enjambment, imagery) produce the poem's meaning and effect, rather than simply restating what the poem is 'about'.	Because poets control lineation deliberately; a line break can create emphasis, suspense, ambiguity, or contrast by isolating a word or delaying a clause's completion.	Syntax shapes pacing and rhythm, so long, flowing sentences can mimic calm or obsessive thought while short, fragmented ones can convey shock, urgency or breathlessness — meaning is created by form as well as content.
IB-ENGLISHALIT-2-2ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-2-1ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-1-4ANSWER
English A: Literature 3 Comparative essay: theme across two works (Paper 2)	English A: Literature 2 Guided literary analysis: unseen poetry (Paper 1)	English A: Literature 2 Guided literary analysis: unseen poetry (Paper 1)
An integrated essay organises paragraphs by idea and discusses both works together within each paragraph; a block comparison treats each work in a separate, self-contained half, which produces weaker comparison.	Short lines with frequent enjambment and few pauses can create rapid pacing, as the eye and voice are pulled quickly from line to line without resting on end-stopped punctuation.	B. Regular metre and end-stopped lines typically produce a controlled, measured rhythm, often associated with composure or formality.
IB-ENGLISHALIT-3-1ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-2-4ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-2-3ANSWER
English A: Literature 3 Comparative essay: theme across two works (Paper 2)	English A: Literature 3 Comparative essay: theme across two works (Paper 2)	English A: Literature 3 Comparative essay: theme across two works (Paper 2)
Topic sentences should announce the specific comparative point of the paragraph (not just the topic), guiding the reader through the argument's logic across both works.	B. Plot summary without sustained analytical comparison is a common weakness in Paper 2 responses.	Because pure similarity or pure difference oversimplifies; naming both allows for a nuanced argument that can be developed and complicated across the essay's body paragraphs.
IB-ENGLISHALIT-3-4ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-3-3ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-3-2ANSWER
English A: Literature 4 Comparative essay: narrative or dramatic technique (Paper 2)	English A: Literature 4 Comparative essay: narrative or dramatic technique (Paper 2)	English A: Literature 4 Comparative essay: narrative or dramatic technique (Paper 2)
B. Non-chronological structure reorders information deliberately, often to create mystery or invite audiences to reinterpret earlier events in light of later revelations.	Staging choices such as use of set, lighting, stage directions, or the presence/absence of an on-stage audience (e.g. asides, soliloquy) shape how meaning is conveyed to a live audience.	Technique-focused comparison demonstrates awareness of craft and form, showing how meaning is constructed, not just what the meaning is — this depth is highly rewarded.
IB-ENGLISHALIT-4-3ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-4-2ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-4-1ANSWER
English A: Literature 5 The novel and short story: narrative method	English A: Literature 5 The novel and short story: narrative method	English A: Literature 4 Comparative essay: narrative or dramatic technique (Paper 2)
Because their limited length compels compression; short stories frequently imply background, motive, or resolution rather than stating them fully, trusting the reader to infer meaning.	The combination of narrative voice/point of view, structuring of time, and control of information (what is revealed or withheld) that shapes how a story is told.	Narrative: selective first-person disclosure (withholding a character's true motive). Dramatic: soliloquy (letting the audience alone hear a character's private thoughts, building sympathy other characters lack).
IB-ENGLISHALIT-5-2ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-5-1ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-4-4ANSWER

English A: Literature 6 Poetry: voice, form and imagery	English A: Literature 5 The novel and short story: narrative method	English A: Literature 5 The novel and short story: narrative method
Poets construct personas for artistic purposes; unless there is strong contextual evidence, the poem's 'I' should be treated as a crafted voice distinct from the poet's own biography.	Interweaving alternating chapters or sections devoted to different characters/subplots, allowing parallel storylines to develop and eventually intersect.	B. Limited perspective (first person or limited third person) restricts access to a single character's inner life, unlike omniscient narration.
IB-ENGLISHALIT-6-1ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-5-4ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-5-3ANSWER
English A: Literature 6 Poetry: voice, form and imagery	English A: Literature 6 Poetry: voice, form and imagery	English A: Literature 6 Poetry: voice, form and imagery
By carrying a sentence over a line break without pause, enjambment can create momentum, urgency, or an unresolved feeling, contrasting with the closure of end-stopped lines.	B. A conceit is an extended, often elaborate metaphor developed throughout a poem or passage.	Form creates expectations of order or freedom; adherence to or departure from a fixed form can reinforce or undercut the poem's content (e.g. a broken rhyme scheme suggesting disorder).
IB-ENGLISHALIT-6-4ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-6-3ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-6-2ANSWER
English A: Literature 7 Drama: staging, dialogue and dramatic irony	English A: Literature 7 Drama: staging, dialogue and dramatic irony	English A: Literature 7 Drama: staging, dialogue and dramatic irony
B. A soliloquy is a solo speech giving the audience direct access to a character's private thoughts.	The implied meaning or emotion beneath a character's literal words, often in tension with what is actually said.	Drama is written for performance, so meaning is also conveyed through staging, movement, silence, and visual/aural elements the text only implies via stage directions — not through narration.
IB-ENGLISHALIT-7-3ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-7-2ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-7-1ANSWER
English A: Literature 8 Prose other than fiction: rhetoric and structure	English A: Literature 8 Prose other than fiction: rhetoric and structure	English A: Literature 7 Drama: staging, dialogue and dramatic irony
Non-fiction is generally read as making direct truth claims tied to the real writer, whereas fiction's narrator is a constructed device that need not represent the author's actual views.	Ethos (credibility/character), pathos (emotion), and logos (logic/reason) — writers and speakers typically combine these to persuade.	Repetitive or nervous physical business (e.g. fidgeting with an object) can visually signal anxiety or dishonesty that the character's spoken words do not admit.
IB-ENGLISHALIT-8-2ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-8-1ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-7-4ANSWER
English A: Literature 9 Works in translation: context and cultural framing	English A: Literature 8 Prose other than fiction: rhetoric and structure	English A: Literature 8 Prose other than fiction: rhetoric and structure
Translators make interpretive decisions (word choice, footnotes, omissions) that can shift nuance, tone, or cultural specificity, so the translated text is a mediated version of the original, not a transparent equivalent.	Framing the piece with a repeated image or phrase at beginning and end (circular structure) can create a sense of closure or suggest the argument has come full circle.	B. Rhetorical questions engage the audience by implying a self-evident answer that supports the argument being made.
IB-ENGLISHALIT-9-1ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-8-4ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-8-3ANSWER
English A: Literature 9 Works in translation: context and cultural framing	English A: Literature 9 Works in translation: context and cultural framing	English A: Literature 9 Works in translation: context and cultural framing
Because languages differ in sound patterns, idiom, and syntax, a translator often cannot preserve rhyme, pun, or rhythm exactly and must find an approximate equivalent or compensate elsewhere in the text.	B. Footnotes and translator's notes are tools for conveying context that might not transfer automatically through translation alone.	It can lead to misreading culturally specific customs, values, or social structures, flattening meaningful differences that are central to the work's original context and purpose.
IB-ENGLISHALIT-9-4ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-9-3ANSWER	IB-ENGLISHALIT-9-2ANSWER

English A: Literature

10 The HL essay: independent literary analysis (HL)

B. The HL essay is produced independently (with teacher guidance) outside the exam room, unlike the timed, externally set Paper 1 and Paper 2 tasks.

IB-ENGLISHALIT-10-3

ANSWER

English A: Literature

10 The HL essay: independent literary analysis (HL)

It lacks the specificity and arguability needed to sustain focused, original analysis within the word limit; a strong line of inquiry ties a precise question to a concrete textual feature or technique.

IB-ENGLISHALIT-10-2

ANSWER

English A: Literature

10 The HL essay: independent literary analysis (HL)

Approximately 1200–1500 words, requiring an independently formulated, focused line of inquiry into one or a small number of works studied, assessed externally.

IB-ENGLISHALIT-10-1

ANSWER

English A: Literature

11 Individual oral: global issue in literary and non-literary works

Because the extracts must clearly and specifically support analysis of both the global issue and relevant technique; poorly chosen extracts make it difficult to demonstrate the required depth of textual analysis.

IB-ENGLISHALIT-11-2

ANSWER

English A: Literature

11 Individual oral: global issue in literary and non-literary works

It must connect the global issue to specific literary/technical features (content AND form) in chosen extracts from the works studied, not just describe the issue in general terms.

IB-ENGLISHALIT-11-1

ANSWER

English A: Literature

10 The HL essay: independent literary analysis (HL)

Questions that are too broad or purely descriptive (e.g. 'How is death presented?') rather than narrow and analytical, which prevents sustained, original argument.

IB-ENGLISHALIT-10-4

ANSWER

English A: Literature

11 Individual oral: global issue in literary and non-literary works

A non-literary text such as a speech, opinion article, or advertisement could help a student identify how a global issue is publicly framed, informing (though not replacing) the required analysis of the literary extracts themselves.

IB-ENGLISHALIT-11-4

ANSWER

English A: Literature

11 Individual oral: global issue in literary and non-literary works

B. The core requirement is analysis of technique in relation to the global issue; summary and biography alone do not satisfy this.

IB-ENGLISHALIT-11-3

ANSWER